Public Notice.

TO RENT.

"Come into my parlor," said the Spider to the Fly.

"'Tis the prettiest little parlor that ever you did spy."

Next week I will apply this to some of the studios of Chicago and "give away" some of their "fly" schemes.

Explanation in regard to my New Life Size Portrait.

This Portrait I have named

Photo Crayon!

The only reason that Crayon, or India Ink, was ever used to make our Portraits is this: Up to a short time ago there was no method of making a life-size Photograph perfect without the use of India Ink, or Crayon, to strengthen the shadows of the picture, or to a very large Photograph the shadows were too full and intense and the high lights burned brilliance, but united with a grain of knowledge of the past difficulties of the art known this to be a fact, of course the Crayon work made the pictures soft more and the photographer with the subtle they were more intensified last forever, etc. The public have believed this so long that now hardly believe anything else. Now this is not, nor ever has been, the case. The taking of any Photograph is not the part that it is a Photograph, but the lack of knowledge of the Photographer. All Photographs, good or bad, are made with the same chemicals. It costs just as much to make a poor Photograph as a good one, HENCE is the only chemical not used in a good picture.

A picture made by an ignorant photographer, whether it is finished in India Ink or not, WILL FADE. The print paper will not keep it from fading. A photograph which is the result of knowledge applied to the proper place in the process, whether it is finished in crayon or not, WILL NOT FADE. The price paid at this desk will not materially change properly in the hands of ignorants. The FACES that our pictures is made on, whether it is a photograph of a two-hand drawing, is then still more nature. The fading of our pictures is due to the paper, not to the method by which the portrait is put on the paper.

I have invented a process for making a PERMANENT LIFE-SIZE PORTRAIT which will in every way, the necessity of crayon work. I am now offer a better PORTRAIT than any crayon ever made or that ever will be made, (of course Crayon artists will "KICK," but that will not make any difference). The success of the HARTLEY PHOTO CRAYON has already been assured. Its success of "KINLOCH" will have any effect on the sale.

I have had an offer of $1,000 for the secret method, but will not sell it until such a time as I think it best to do so. I shall first make more than that amount from the sale of the Portraits. Photographers and artists think I should give it to the profession. But no! I for one propose to furnish the brains for a lot of high-priced flunkers too lazy or ignorant to study.

HARD-HITTING QUAKERS.

THEY HAVE GREATLY THE BEST OF THE EXHIBITION GAMES.

The Philadelphia Club Records Two More Victories Over Detroit—Chicago Defeated by Boston—The Washington Club Crushing Baltimore—Other Games.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Philadelphia team has a permanent grasp upon the championship record and the average and individual ones. The game was a fine one to look at, and the players were kept busy all the time, but the Detroits were batted out of the game by the heavy hitting of the Quakers, who made a total of twenty-two bases on balls, besides batting Getzein and Conway for safe hits. Their batting was timely, and they kept the Detroits down to a few scattering hits. Clements was batted for the first time in a game with Philadelphia, and the result must have been a surprise to him, for he had not an easy inning. Getzein pitched a fine game, but was batted in the pinches. Wood's batting was the feature of the game, and Thompson's fielding was also fine. The score:

[Table]

Gossip Concerning the Detroit Nine.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Detroit team left for Philadelphia at 7 o'clock last night, accompanied by Manager Brush in the best of spirits. The Detroits are confident that they will win the championship, and they have a good reason for their confidence. They have only to win one game from the Philadelphias to secure the championship, and they have won two games from them in succession. The Detroits are playing good ball now, and the Philadelphias have been batted all over the field in the last two games. Should the Detroits win the championship, they will receive $1,000 each, and the players will have earned it, for they have had a hard struggle. Conway has been batted hard in the last two games, but he has been pitching good ball, and has been unfortunate in having poor support behind him. Getzein has been pitching good ball, and has been batted hard in the last game. Clements has been batting well, and has been batted hard in the last game. Clements has been batting well, and has been batted hard in the last game. Clements has been batting well, and has been batted hard in the last game.

Chicago's Management of the Boat Nuisance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The arrangement of the Chicago Base Ball Club to engage an Olympic Council to take charge of the boat nuisance on the Chicago grounds has proved satisfactory, and the good order is apparent to every one. "The Chicago Council took hold in right earnest from the moment it took charge," said one, "and it is to the credit of the Chicago Club that the council thought it could do its work properly. It is to be hoped that the New York and other clubs will follow the example of the Chicago Club, and have such a council. The Chicago Council has been very successful in its work, and has been very popular with the players. The council has been very successful in its work, and has been very popular with the players. What Mistake Engineers Are Most Likely to Make—Some of the Simple Principles Which Should Be Borne in Mind—What an "Engine" Is and How Locomotives Are Named—Some Facts About the Largest Engine for Freight Hauling—Confidence of Good Drivers.

In the United States there are hundreds of thousands of persons who play billiards. In other parts of the civilized world the game is popular, and in the countries where Europeans are the predominating society are, in fact, very few communities of any size that do not have billiard tables. Of the players in the United States, and Europe, and wherever billiards are played, there are probably not a dozen persons who have ever stopped to consider the principles involved in the game. The great part of men play for two hours more than they should, and then go home with a comfortable sense that they have had a pleasant time. Another class of players go through the game with a certain degree of precision and are quite content if they succeed in making a certain number of points, while a small class of players, who are accustomed to the game and who realize every shot that they execute, watch every shot that their opponents make, and have a good time whether they win or lose. Every one has to think of the philosophy of the game, but go along mechanically and acquire a certain degree of execution which enables them to beat the man who knows about as much as they do. A good many who are familiar with the principles of billiards and science are at last forced to acknowledge that they are not quite sure how they are going to play almost every shot as soon as the balls have settled down after the shot previous. Sometimes it is a shot to "nurse" and at others it is a shot to "open" the balls, but the most common reasons for the variation in the methods of playing are the varying conditions of the table, the balls and the cushions. Every one has had the experience of playing on a table which has been newly covered, and which has been left for a few days to settle. The cushions are hard and the balls are lively, and the player who has been accustomed to the old table finds that he has to allow more for the cushions and for the effects of each shot generally. The next time they experience this, perhaps days, they succeed in making allowance for the conditions, but the next time they play they find that the cushions have softened up and the balls are dead, and they have to allow less than they did before. Then, perhaps, they play on a table which has been left for a few days without being used, and they find that the cushions are dead and the balls are lively, and they have to allow more than they did before. Then they play on a table which has been left for a few days without being used, and they find that the cushions are dead and the balls are lively, and they have to allow more than they did before.
